Bibliography

ODDMENTS BY PYNCHON:

BOOKS, CHAPTERS, ESSAYS, ARTICLES, FRAGMENTS, ETC. WHOLLY OR PARTLY ABOUT PYNCHON:

A different and longer version of "Black Humor and History: Fiction in the Sixties." Partisan Review, 43, No. 2 (1976), 185-211.

Greiner, Donald J. "Fiction as History, History as Fiction: The Reader and Thomas Pynchon's V." South Carolina Review, 10, No. 1 (1977), 4-18.

Jameson, Fredric. "World-Reduction in LeGuin: The Emergence of Utopian Narrative." Science Fiction Studies, 2, No. 3 (1975), 221-30. (223) Mentions Pynchon's work as exemplifying the revitalization of the literary novel by re-incorporating into it the formal capacities of science fiction.

-----------. Chapter 4, "Thomas Pynchon and the Abreaction of the Lord of Night," 159-97.

O'Connor, Peter. "The Wasteland of Thomas Pynchon's

(130-40)

Discusses Gravity's Rainbow.

ITEMS FROM THE POPULAR PRESS:

Lists and briefly characterizes Gravity's Rainbow.

Mentions Gravity's Rainbow.

Quotes from and briefly discusses The Crying of Lot 49.

Makes a passing comparison with Gravity's Rainbow.

Mentions Gardner's "moral" attack on Pynchon.

Mentions Pynchon.

Rates Pynchon among the best, nationally and internationally.
TRANSLATIONS OF WORKS BY AND ABOUT PYNCHON:

Pynchon, Thomas. Die Versteigerung von No 49.

----------. "Ona Wisi Na Zachodniej Scianie."
Chapter 7 of V. less the introductory section.
The first Pynchon to appear in Polish.

Winston, Mathew. "W Poszukiwaniu Pyncha."*
Polish translation of "The Quest for Pynchon."

FOREIGN-LANGUAGE WORKS ABOUT PYNCHON:

Brugiare, Marion. (See p. 2 above.)

Manuskripte, 15, H52 (1976), 36-44.

Profit, Marie-Claude. (See p. 3 above.)

We would like to thank Barry Batorsky, Beverly Clark, David Cowart, Robert Hariman, Peter L. Hays, Bruce Herzburg, Don Larsson, Edward Mendelson, Richard F. Patteson, Javaid Qazi, Thomas Schaub, Michael Seidel, Mark Siegel, Michael Silverblatt, Marcus Smith, Gary Thompson, Raymond Wilson, and Mathew Winston for their contributions to this issue of Pynchon Notes.