

Contributors

THOMAS A. BASS holds a doctorate in the History of Consciousness from the University of California at Santa Cruz. He wrote his dissertation on the subject of "Fiction and History." His book The Eudaemonic Pie will be published in 1984 by Houghton Mifflin.

STEPHEN P. SCHUBER received his Ph.D. in Comparative Literature from the University of Oregon, and afterwards taught for a time in Algeria. Recently he was a monitor at the Up in Michigan Hemingway conference, and is now preparing an essay for publication in the Hemingway Review.

PHILIP STOREY received his B.A. in English from Florida State University and teacher certification from Nichols College in Massachusetts. He now teaches at the Rumsey Hall School in Washington, Connecticut, and is writing a novel in completion of the requirements for his M.A.L.S. thesis at Wesleyan University.

J. O. TATE received his Ph.D. from Columbia University, and is Coordinator of the Humanities Division and Associate Professor of English at Dowling College. He has published essays on Flannery O'Connor in the Flannery O'Connor Bulletin and the Southern Review, and has reviewed various books for National Review. He is now completing essays on Walker Percy and Raymond Chandler.

The editors would also like to thank the following for their contributions to this issue of Pynchon Notes: Elizabeth Bayerl, Joel Knudson, Cliff Mead, Edward Mendelson, Steve Moore, Yoshiaki Sato, and David Spatz.