

Contributors

M. KEITH BOOKER is an assistant professor of English at the University of Arkansas. The author of numerous essays on literature and literary theory published or forthcoming in such journals as ELH, College English, Journal of Modern Literature, and James Joyce Quarterly, he is also the author of Techniques of Subversion in Modern Literature: Transgression, Abjection, and the Carnavalesque, now in press at the University of Florida Press.

CHARLES CLERC, Professor of English at the University of the Pacific, is the editor of Approaches to Gravity's Rainbow (1983) and the author of Stockton, Heart of the Valley: A Contemporary Portrait (1989).

MARK CONROY is Associate Professor of English at the Ohio State University. He is the author of Modernism and Authority, as well as articles on Joseph Conrad, Friedrich Nietzsche, Nathanael West and Martin Scorsese. He is at work on a book about E. M. Forster, Ford Madox Ford and Wyndham Lewis.

N. KATHERINE HAYLES is the Millingwood F. Carpenter Professor of English at the University of Iowa. She writes on relations between twentieth-century literature and science, and has published articles on Gravity's Rainbow and Vineland. Her latest book is Chaos Bound: Orderly Disorder in Contemporary Literature and Science (Ithaca: Cornell UP, 1990).

DOUGLAS KEESEY teaches literature and film at Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo. He recently read a paper, "Film and Video in Vineland," at the Twentieth-Century Literature Conference in Louisville. His book on Don DeLillo is forthcoming in Twayne's United States Authors Series.

DONALD F. LARSSON is acting director of the Humanities Program at Mankato State University, where he teaches film, composition, and modern literature. He has published numerous reference articles and is currently working on aspects of film narrative.

MATTHEW MAC KAY received his M.A. in Communication from the Ohio State University in 1978. In 1981 he formed The Sphere of Influence, an art collective that creates art and publishes an irregular newsletter, Conceit. Based on a farm in Prince Edward Island, he is working on a project marking the centenary of Oscar Wilde's lecture tour of Canada.

LOUIS MACKEY teaches philosophy and comparative literature at the University of Texas at Austin. He has published widely on medieval thought, Kierkegaard, and literary criticism, as well as on contemporary literature. He wrote a section of the introduction to the forthcoming facsimile edition of William Pynchon's The Meritorious Price of Our Redemption, and is currently completing a philosophical-critical study of the later work of Gilbert Sorrentino.

ROBERT L. McLAUGHLIN, an Assistant Professor of English at Illinois State University, received his Ph.D. from Fordham University in 1987. In addition to his work on Pynchon, he has published on Ernest Hemingway, Sinclair Lewis, Norman Mailer, T. S. Eliot, Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, and Stephen Sondheim.

ERIC MEYER recently completed his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin--Madison, and is currently an Assistant Professor of English at the University of Louisville. He has published articles on Ford Madox Ford, Conrad, and Byron, and is completing a book on the Romantic epic, Narratives of Development: Romanticism, Modernity, and Imperial History.

STUART MOULTHROP received his Ph.D. in English from Yale University, and has served as an Assistant Professor there and at the University of Texas at Austin. In 1991 he joins the School of Literature, Communication, and Culture at the Georgia Institute of Technology. He is at work on a study of conspiracy fiction since the late sixties, as well as on a number of projects in electronic writing and interactive media.

VIVIENNE RUNDLE is a graduate student in English at the University of Pennsylvania. Her dissertation in progress is "Framing the Reader: Responsibility and Design in Narrative."

THOMAS SCHAUB, Professor of English at the University of Wisconsin--Madison, is the author of Pynchon: The Voice of Ambiguity (1981) and American Fiction in the Cold War (1991). He recently became the editor of Contemporary Literature.

DAVID SEED, a lecturer in English at Liverpool University and a contributing editor of The Year's Work in English Studies, is the author of numerous essays on nineteenth- and twentieth-century literature, as well as of The Fictional Labyrinths of Thomas Pynchon (1988) and The Fiction of Joseph Heller: Against the Grain (1989).

JOHN L. SIMONS is Professor of English at The Colorado College. He has published numerous articles on Pynchon, John Berryman, W. C. Williams, Nathanael West, Sam Peckinpah's The Wild Bunch, and Philip K. Dick.

MICHAEL W. VELLA teaches English at Indiana University of Pennsylvania. His essays on Pynchon's relation to the surrealists have appeared in Pynchon Notes and Twentieth Century Literature. Current projects include a facsimile edition of William Pynchon's The Meritorious Price of Our Redemption, and two essays on Whittier. Inner Vision and Society in the American Novel is forthcoming from Cambridge University Press.

STEVEN WEISENBURGER, a professor of English at the University of Kentucky, is the author of A Gravity's Rainbow Companion (1988), as well as numerous essays and reviews. "Hysteron Proteron in Gravity's Rainbow" is forthcoming in the Fall 1991 issue of Texas Studies in Literature and Language.

RHONDA WILCOX, an Associate Professor of English at Gordon College in Barnesville, Georgia, writes on seriality in Dickens and in popular culture. She has published work on Remington Steele and Moonlighting, and most recently "Shifting Roles and Synthetic Women in Star Trek: The Next Generation" (Studies in Popular Culture 13.2 [1991]: 53-65).

The editors would also like to thank the following for their contributions to this issue of Pynchon Notes: Verne Ball, Hanjo Berressem, James M. Clifford, Maria Vittoria D'Amico, Larry Daw, Paul Delany, John Dugdale, Elizabeth Flynn, Bob Hariman, Jim Hartman, Carole Holdsworth, Gretchen Krafft, Adam Little, Alec McHoul, Cliff Mead, Steve Moore, Patrick O'Donnell, Alex Parsons, Jim Patton, Phillip San Miguel, Yoshiaki Sato, Lance Schachterle, Georg Schmundt-Thomas, Martha Skrivanek, Joe Slade, Joe Tabbi, Tom Terranova, Kenn Thomas, and Steve Tomaske.